Heros De Agostinis, Executive Chef in the Carlton Hotel

“What is the secret behind my cooking? Choose the best dishes from the simplest ideas and turn them into delicacies.” After holding down various positions in top-class hotels in Europe, Heros De Agostinis is to become Executive Chef in the Carlton Hotel St. Moritz from the 2019/20 winter season onwards. During the summer months, the chef, who is originally from Italy, will continue to work alongside Heinz Beck, his mentor of many years.

De Agostinis offers sophisticated creations: “He manages to prepare even simple dishes in an exceptional manner”, explains Philippe Clarinval, General Manager of the Carlton Hotel. “An Executive Chef with his wealth of international experience represents outstanding value for us given that our guests are extremely discerning.” De Agostinis is looking forward to the Alpine challenge: “I am excited about coming to Switzerland and about the work in the Carlton and can hardly wait to add my own personal touch to the cuisine of the Carlton Hotel.” In addition to the Restaurant Romanoff, he will also be responsible for dishes served on the sun terrace of the Carlton and on the Bel Etage. Guests can indulge themselves with sophisticated classic dishes and international specialities. Working together with his kitchen team, De Agostinis whips up dishes with a great deal of charm and panache. With modern interpretations and clever combinations of dishes, Heros De Agostinis’ culinary creations evoke the most beautiful memories and at the same time constantly provide surprising new taste experiences.

Previously, De Agostinis worked as Senior Sous-Chef at the La Pergola Restaurant in Rome and as Executive Chef at Heinz Beck's Michelin-starred restaurant Apsleys at The Lanesborough in London. After that, he managed the Odyssey pop-up restaurant in the Hotel Metropole in Monaco, which also belongs to Heinz Beck, before most recently working as Executive Chef at Brown's Hotel in London.
