Simon Spiller, General Manager of the Hotel Eden Roc in Ascona

In August 2019, Simon Spiller took over as General Manager of the Hotel Eden Roc and the Albergo Carcani in Ticino. Originally from Lucerne, he previously served at the Brenners Park-Hotel & Spa, Baden-Baden.

“Ever since my return to Europe, I have wanted to manage a hotel in Switzerland – and now my wish has come true with two fantastic establishments in Ticino. I am very much looking forward to working on the shores of Lake Maggiore and to playing a part in the future development of the two hotels”, explains Simon Spiller.

Simon Spiller (45) started his career as a hotelier by training to be a chef at the Hotel Palace Luzern. He next attended the École hôtelière de Lausanne hospitality management school. After gaining practical experience, predominantly in the F&B area, at the Four Seasons Hotels in New York, Berlin, Austin, and Vancouver, he moved to the Raffles Group and worked in countries such as Dubai, China, and Saudi Arabia.

His first tenure as a Hotel Manager was at The Chedi Club Tanah Gajah on Bali. He then returned to Europe, completed an EMBA in Finance & Management at the University of Lausanne, and subsequently took on the position at the Brenners Hotel.

Simon Spiller is married with a five-year-old son.
